Provisions as to persons unlawfully at large

80.—(1) Any person who, having been sentenced to detention under this Act, is at large may (without prejudice to any other power of arrest) be arrested by any police officer or any officer of the Force or a provost officer without warrant and taken to any place in which he may be required to be detained in accordance with this Act.

(2) Where any person sentenced to detention under this Act is at large at any time during the period for which he is liable to be detained in pursuance of the sentence, no account shall be taken, in calculating the period for which he is liable to be so detained, of any time elapsing after he was at large and before either he is taken into custody or he is received into a detention barrack.

(3) Where a charge has been dealt with by a disciplinary officer otherwise than by the dismissal thereof, the reviewing authority shall as soon as practicable review the finding or award.

(5) If a finding in any proceedings is quashed under subsection (4) and the award made in those proceedings relates only to the finding quashed, the reviewing authority shall also quash the award.

(6) If the award relates also to any other finding and it appears to the reviewing authority that the award was not warranted by this Act in respect of that other finding, the reviewing authority may vary the award by substituting such punishment as the reviewing authority may think proper, being a punishment which could have been included in the original award in relation to that other finding, and not being in the opinion of the reviewing authority more severe than the punishment included in the original award.

(7) Where on a review under this section it appears to the reviewing authority that a punishment awarded was invalid, or too severe, the reviewing authority may vary the award by substituting such punishment as the reviewing authority may think proper, being a punishment which could have been included in the original award and not being in the opinion of the reviewing authority more severe than the punishment included in the original award.

(8) Where on a review under this section it appears to the reviewing authority that an order to pay compensation made under section 75(3) or (4) was invalid, or unduly excessive, the reviewing authority may quash the order or vary the amount of compensation payable under the order.
