20 (2) If any amount which, under subsection (1), is payable to a seafarer is not paid at the time at which it is so payable, the seafarer shall be entitled to wages at the rate last payable under the seafarer's employment agreement for every day on which it remains unpaid until the full amount is paid.

25 (3) Subsection (2) shall not apply if the failure to pay was due to any reasonable dispute as to liability or to the act or default of the seafarer or to any other cause, not being the wrongful act or default of the person liable to pay his wages or of his employee or agent.

30 (4) The master of a ship shall deliver to each seafarer employed on the ship under a seafarer's employment agreement, a monthly account of wages due to him under that agreement, including but not limited to basic wage, basic leave wage, overtime pay and other allowances

(2) A person to whom any part of a seafarer's wages has been allotted by an allotment note issued in accordance with this section shall have the right to recover that part in his own name and for that purpose shall have the same remedies as the seafarer has for the recovery of his wages.

(3) In any proceedings brought by a person named in such an allotment note as the person to whom any part of a seafarer's wages has been allotted, it shall be presumed, unless the contrary is proved, that the seafarer is entitled to the wages specified in the note and that the allotment has not been varied or cancelled.

(4) Unless the shipowner and the seafarer otherwise agree —

(9) The shipowner shall grant and the seafarer shall take annual leave not later than 12 months after the end of every 12 months of continuous service and any seafarer who fails to take that leave by the
5 end of such period shall thereupon cease to be entitled thereto.

(10) Subject to subsection (9) and unless otherwise provided in an agreement applicable to the shipowner and the seafarer concerned, the seafarer shall be entitled to an uninterrupted period of annual leave.

(11) In calculating the proportionate annual leave under 10 subsection (3), any fraction of a day which is less than one-half of a day shall be disregarded and where the fraction of the day is one-half or more it shall be regarded as one day.

(4) A young seafarer who is found to be unsuited to life at sea after having served on a ship for at least 4 months during his first foreign-going voyage, shall be given the opportunity to be repatriated at no expense to himself and in accordance with this section from the first suitable port of call in which there are consular services of Singapore or of the state of his nationality or residence. 20 25

(5) A shipowner shall notify the authority of the state which issued the papers enabling the young seafarer concerned to take up seagoing employment, of such repatriation referred to in subsection (4) and the reasons therefor.

15 (10) No person shall require any seafarer to make an advance payment towards the costs of repatriation or be entitled to recover, or to make any deduction for, the costs of repatriation from the seafarer's wages or other entitlements except where the seafarer has been found after due inquiry by the Director to have been in serious default of his employment obligations.

20 (11) Where a seafarer referred to in subsection (2)(c)(ii) or (vi) remains in the country mentioned therein after the end of a period of 3 months, the person who last employed him as a seafarer shall not be liable under this section to make provision for the seafarer's return or for any matter arising after the end of that period, unless he has, before the end of that period, been under an obligation imposed on him under this section to make provision with respect to the seafarer.

25 (12) Where it appears to the Director that a shipowner is unable to make, has failed to make or fails to continue to make provisions necessary for the repatriation of a seafarer in his employment under this section, the Director may, in his discretion, make such provision and recover from the shipowner any costs and expense incurred by the Director in making such provision.

(13) Nothing in this section shall prejudice any right of a shipowner to recover the costs of repatriation under third-party contractual arrangements.

(14) A shipowner shall cause a legible copy of this section and any regulations relating to the repatriation of seafarers made under this Act in English, and the working language of the ship if it is not English, to be carried on board the ship and to be made available to seafarers.

(3) A seafarer shall not be entitled to wages by virtue of subsection (1) or (2) for a day on which he was unemployed, if it is shown —

- (a) that the unemployment was not due to the wreck or loss of the ship or, as the case may be, the termination of his employment on the sale of the ship or its ceasing to be registered in Singapore; or
- (b) that the seafarer was able to obtain suitable employment for that day but unreasonably refused to take it.

(4) The master and a seafarer employed on a ship shall have the same lien and remedies for his wages payable under this section, as a seaman has for his wages.

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

This Bill seeks to enable Singapore to give effect to the Maritime Labour Convention 2006 (the Convention) which was adopted by the General Conference of the International Labour Organization (ILO) at Geneva on 23rd February 2006, and to make provisions generally for matters connected therewith. Singapore ratified the Convention on 15th June 2011. The Convention entered into force globally on 20th August 2013 and its requirements applied to Singapore from that date.

The Bill also seeks to make related amendments to the Employment Act (Cap. 91), the Merchant Shipping Act (Cap. 179) and the Work Injury Compensation Act (Cap. 354).

The Convention is an international treaty adopted by the ILO to provide for the rights and protection of seafarers at work. It establishes comprehensive minimum requirements for different aspects of working conditions for seafarers working on board commercial ships, including conditions of employment, hours of work and rest, accommodation, recreational facilities, food and catering, health protection, medical care, welfare and social security protection. The Convention also establishes a compliance and enforcement mechanism based on inspection and certification of the seafarers' working and living conditions on board ship.

The Convention comprises 3 different but related parts: the Articles, the Regulations and the Code. The Articles and Regulations set out the core rights and principles and the basic obligations of Member States to the Convention. The Code contains the details for the implementation of the Regulations. It comprises Part A (mandatory Standards) and Part B (non-mandatory Guidelines).

The Convention makes the shipowner primarily responsible to ensure that the minimum requirements for the working conditions, and workplace health and safety, for seafarers working on board his ship, are met.

The Convention defines the "shipowner" broadly to include the owner or another organisation or person, such as the ship manager, agent or bareboat charterer, who has assumed the responsibility for the operation of the ship from the owner and who, on assuming such responsibility, has agreed to take over the duties and responsibilities imposed on shipowners in accordance with the Convention, regardless of whether any other organisation or person fulfils certain of the duties or responsibilities on behalf of the shipowner.

The Convention covers a broad spectrum of maritime employment standards. In certain areas, the Convention imposes more comprehensive standards than existing Singapore legislation. The Convention also gives a degree of flexibility to the competent authority in the Member State to make certain determinations after consulting with the representatives of national shipowners' and seafarers' organisations.

As the national maritime flag administration, the Maritime and Port Authority of Singapore (the Authority), including the Director of Marine (the Director), will under the Bill be responsible for the administration of the Convention's requirements. The Authority's new responsibilities will include regulating seafarer recruitment and placement services, setting requirements for occupational health and safety on board ships, and regulating the training and certification of ships' cooks. The Authority is required by the Bill to put in place measures to require that Singapore-flagged ships comply with the requirements of the Convention as implemented under the Bill, and will inspect foreign-flagged ships calling at Singapore port for their compliance with the requirements of the Convention.

The Bill seeks to enact the core rights and principles in the Articles and Regulations, and those mandatory Standards in Part A of the Code, of the Convention, as well as the national determinations made by the Authority, that exceed the protections currently accorded under the provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act and other current laws. It seeks to enable Singapore to achieve compliance with the Convention by supplementing the provisions in existing labour and maritime laws, and through related amendments to the Merchant Shipping Act to align the seafarer-related requirements within that Act with those in the Bill, and to the Work Injury Compensation Act, to prevent double recovery under that Act and the Bill for the same medical expenses or loss of wages arising from the same work injury.

PART I PRELIMINARY

Clause 1 relates to the short title and commencement.

Clause 2 defines certain terms used in the Bill. The definitions of key terms in the Bill including "seafarer", "ship" and "shipowner", adopt substantially the meanings given to these terms in the Convention. The term "seafarer" includes certificated seafarers (master and seamen) and non-certificated seafarers such as catering and housekeeping staff on some ships. To harmonise our merchant shipping laws, the clause adopts for other key terms used in the Bill, where applicable, the meanings given to them in the Merchant Shipping Act, particularly where the provisions of that Act are not inconsistent with the provisions of the Convention.

PART II

SCOPE OF APPLICATION

Clause 3 provides for the application of Parts I, II and XI of the Bill to all Singapore ships ordinarily engaged in commercial activities wherever they may be, and all other commercial ships, not being Singapore ships, when these ships are in Singapore, as well as seafarers employed on these ships. Parts III to VII and IX of the Bill only apply to Singapore ships ordinarily engaged in commercial activities wherever they may be and the seafarers employed on board. The scope of application of Parts VIII and X of the Bill are provided for in clauses 47 and 57 respectively.

Clause 4 implements paragraph 6 of Article II of the Convention and enables the Authority to exempt, within prescribed limits, any Singapore ship, or particular categories of Singapore ships, where the Authority determines that it would not be reasonable or practicable to apply any provision of the Bill or any regulations made under the Bill to such ships.

PART III

MINIMUM REQUIREMENTS FOR SEAFARERS' EMPLOYMENT

Clause 5 implements Regulation 1.1 and paragraph 1 of Standard A1.1 of the Convention and makes it an offence to cause or permit a person below 16 years of age to be employed on board a ship.

Clause 6(1) implements paragraph 8 of Standard A3.2 of the Convention, and provides that no seafarer below 18 years of age is to be employed or engaged, or work, as a ship's cook. Clause 6(2) makes it an offence to employ or engage a seafarer below 18 years of age as a ship's cook.

Clause 7 implements Regulation 1.2 and Standard A1.2 of the Convention on medical certificates and requires seafarers to have valid medical fitness certificates complying with prescribed requirements before they may work on board a ship.

Clause 7(3) and (4) provide that a seafarer holding an expired medical fitness certificate under certain circumstances may temporarily work as a seafarer on a ship until the first port of call where an application for a medical fitness certificate can be made.

Clause 8 prohibits the employment of any person as a seafarer on a ship unless that seafarer has a valid medical fitness certificate issued by a qualified medical practitioner.

Clause 8(2) and (3) permit the temporary employment as a seafarer of a person holding an expired medical fitness certificate under certain circumstances until the first port of call where an application for a medical fitness certificate can be made.

Clause 9 implements paragraph 7 of Standard A1.2 of the Convention, and prescribes relevant periods for the validity of a seafarer's medical fitness certificate.

Clause 10 provides for the mandatory reporting of certain medical conditions such as injury and illness affecting the seafarer's ability to carry out his duties.

Clause 11 implements paragraph 5 of Standard A1.2 of the Convention and enables any person who is aggrieved by the decision of a qualified medical practitioner with respect to his seafarer's medical fitness certificate to apply to the Director for the matter to be reviewed by another qualified medical practitioner.

Clause 12 implements Regulation 1.4 and Standard A1.4 of the Convention, as well as national determinations, on seafarers' recruitment and placement, and regulates seafarer recruitment and placement services within Singapore. The clause provides that notwithstanding any written law to the contrary, no person may demand or receive, directly or indirectly, from a prospective employee or from a person on behalf of a prospective employee, any remuneration whatsoever for providing him with employment. The clause also prohibits the use of any seafarer recruitment and placement service located in a state or territory that has not acceded to or ratified the Convention unless the Director is satisfied that the seafarer recruitment and placement service is compliant with the requirements of the Convention.

PART IV

CONDITIONS OF SEAFARERS' EMPLOYMENT

Clause 13 enacts into Singapore law, the basic seafarers' employment and social rights set out in Article IV of the Convention, which collectively comprise the raison d'être of the entire Convention and the Code.

Clause 14 implements Regulation 2.1 and Standard A2.1 of the Convention on seafarers' employment agreements, which is a key requirement of the Convention. The clause changes the existing legal requirement set out in the Merchant Shipping Act, which requires only articles of agreement or a crew agreement to be entered into between the shipowner and all the seamen collectively on a Singapore ship. The clause provides that a seafarer may only be employed on a ship to which the Bill applies if there is in place a seafarer's employment agreement between him and the shipowner, and sets out provisions in respect of such agreements. The clause also makes it an offence for any person to employ a seafarer or enter into a seafarer's employment agreement in contravention of its provisions.

Clause 15 imposes an obligation on the shipowner and the master to notify the Authority of the details of seafarers who are employed on a ship, on certain specified occasions.

Clause 16 implements Regulation 2.3 and Standard A2.3 of the Convention, as well as national determinations, and provides for and regulates the minimum hours of rest for seafarers when they are employed on board a ship. Similar requirements for minimum hours of rest are provided for in both the Convention and the International Convention on Standards of Training, Certification and Watchkeeping for Seafarers, 1978 adopted in London at the International Maritime Organisation (IMO) and which came into force in 1984, as revised in 1995 (the STCW), and as amended by the amendments adopted by the IMO at Manila in 2010 (the Manila amendments). Singapore is also a party to the STCW and the Manila amendments. The purpose is to ensure adequate rest for the seafarers working on board a ship. Adequate rest helps safeguard their health and welfare, and also the safety of the ship and of the lives and cargo on board, as crew fatigue is one of the identified causes of shipboard accidents and accidents at sea.

Clause 17 implements Guideline B2.3.1 of the Convention and recognises the special needs of young seafarers, defined in the Bill as seafarers who are 16 years of age or above, and below 18 years of age. The clause provides for restrictions on the working hours of young seafarers, which may only be deviated from under certain specified conditions.

Clause 18 implements paragraphs 2 and 3 of Standard A1.1 of the Convention and prohibits night work for seafarers below 18 years of age, except under certain conditions. Clause 18(2) empowers the Director to give approval for a young seafarer to be employed in night work where it is necessary for effective training of the young seafarer in accordance with established programmes and schedules, or where the specific nature of the work or a recognised training programme requires night work and the Director has determined that the work will not be detrimental to the health or well-being of the young seafarer. The clause defines night work in accordance with a national determination made by the Authority after consultation with the representatives of Singapore's national shipowners' and seafarers' organisations.

Clause 19 implements paragraph 4 of Standard A1.1 of the Convention and prohibits hazardous work for young seafarers on board any ship. Clause 19(3) defines hazardous work for young seafarers with reference to paragraph 2 of Guideline B4.3.10 of the Convention and in accordance with a national determination made by the Authority after consultation with the representatives of Singapore's national shipowners' and seafarers' organisations.

Clauses 20 and 21 implement Regulation 2.2 and Standard A2.2 of the Convention.

Clause 20 provides for when and how the wages due to a seafarer are to be paid to him, and for matters connected therewith. For Singapore ships to which the Bill applies, the clause will replace the existing applicable provisions in sections 56 and 57 of the Merchant Shipping Act.

Clause 21 provides that the seafarer may, by means of an allotment note, allot all or part of the wages to which he becomes entitled to in the course of his employment on a ship, and also sets out provisions for matters connected therewith. For Singapore ships to which the Bill applies, the clause will replace the existing applicable provisions in sections 62 and 63 of the Merchant Shipping Act.

Clause 22 implements Regulation 2.4 and Standard A2.4 of the Convention and provides for the seafarer's entitlement to paid annual leave, and for matters connected therewith. The clause also implements national determinations made by the Authority after consultation with the representatives of Singapore's national shipowners' and seafarers' organisations. Some of the terms used in the clause are similar to terms used in section 43 of the Employment Act.

Clause 23 implements Regulation 2.5 and Standard A2.5 of the Convention and provides for the entitlement of a seafarer to repatriation at no cost to him under specified circumstances. For Singapore ships to which the Bill applies, the clause will replace the existing applicable provisions in sections 85 and 86 of the Merchant Shipping Act.

Clause 24 implements Regulation 2.6 and Standard A2.6 of the Convention and provides for compensation to be paid to a seafarer whose employment on a ship is terminated before the date contemplated in the seafarer's employment agreement under which he is so employed, where his ship is wrecked or lost, or is sold or ceases to be registered in Singapore. For Singapore ships to which the Bill applies, the clause will replace the existing applicable provisions in section 64 of the Merchant Shipping Act.

PART V

CATERING

Clauses 25, 26 and 27 implement paragraph 3 of Regulation 3.2 and Standard A3.2 of the Convention on food and catering on board ship.

Clause 25 requires that a Singapore ship which ordinarily operates with 10 or more seafarers on board does not proceed to sea unless a qualified ship's cook is on board, and also provides for matters connected therewith.

Clause 26 provides for the training requirements for catering staff and other persons processing food in the ship's galley.

Clause 27 sets out the requirements for a certificate of proficiency as a ship's cook.

PART VI

MEDICAL CARE AND TREATMENT

Clauses 28 to 33 implement the requirements of Regulation 4.1 and Standard A4.1 of the Convention dealing with the shipowner's obligation to provide medical care for the seafarers employed by him, on board his ship and ashore.

Clause 28 provides that it is the duty of a shipowner to take such measures as are necessary to ensure the safety and health of all seafarers employed by him on board his ship. These measures include measures on occupational health protection and medical care, arrangements for seafarers to visit any qualified medical doctor or dentist without delay in ports of call and providing medical care and health protection services for any seafarer on board a ship or on land without charge to the seafarer.

Clause 29 provides that a shipowner must make available medical report forms on board his ship. Every completed medical report form and information contained in the form must be kept confidential and must not be released without consent other than for purposes of facilitating that seafarer's treatment.

Clause 30 provides for a medical chest to be carried on board every Singapore ship to which the Bill applies.

Clause 31 requires the shipowner to make arrangements for securing that emergency medical care is available for seafarers on board his ship until the ship is able to reach qualified medical care and medical facilities.

Clause 32 requires the shipowner to make arrangements through which medical advice can be obtained on his ship through radio or satellite communication.

Clause 33 requires the shipowner to make arrangements for the seafarers employed by him to have access to medical care when in port.

Clauses 34 to 38 implement the several requirements of Regulation 4.2 and Standard A4.2 of the Convention which protect seafarers from the financial consequences of sickness, injury or death occurring in connection with their employment and require shipowners to be responsible and liable to pay the costs for seafarers working on board their ships for sickness and injury occurring during the course of their employment.

Clause 34 provides that the shipowner must ensure that there is in force insurance or other security adequate to ensure he is able to meet liabilities arising from repatriation of seafarers or to provide compensation to his seafarers for death or long term disability arising from occupational injury, illness or hazard.

Clause 35 provides that the shipowner is liable to make provisions for his seafarer's medical and other expenses reasonably incurred in connection with his sickness or injury arising during, or caused by circumstances of, his employment by that shipowner.

Clause 36 provides that the shipowner is liable for the seafarer's wages following any sickness or injury sustained by a seafarer in his employment, and sets out provisions connected therewith.

Clause 37 provides that a shipowner is liable for expenses reasonably incurred in connection with a seafarer's burial or cremation.

Clause 38 excludes the shipowner's aforementioned liability under certain specified conditions.

Clause 39 prevents double recovery by a seafarer under clause 35 or 36 in respect of any sickness or injury if he has received compensation for those same amounts under the provisions of the Work Injury Compensation Act.

PART VII

HEALTH AND SAFETY PROTECTION AND ACCIDENT PREVENTION

Clauses 40 to 46 implement Regulation 4.3 and Standard A4.3 of the Convention which seek to ensure that the seafarers' work environment on board ships promotes occupational health and safety.

Clauses 40, 41 and 42, which respectively deal with the occupational health and safety duties of the shipowner, master and seafarer, and clauses 44 and 45 which deal with codes of practice, employ language based on the language used in the relevant provisions of the Workplace Safety and Health Act (Cap. 354A) which deal with analogous matters.

Clause 40 sets out the duty of the shipowner to take measures to ensure the safety and health of the seafarers on board the ship.

Clause 41 sets out the duty of the master to ensure that the measures taken by the shipowner, pursuant to clause 40, are implemented on board the ship.

Clause 43 implements paragraph 2(d) of Standard A4.3 and paragraph 3 of Guideline B4.3.7 of the Convention and provides for a safety committee to be set up on every ship which ordinarily operates with 5 or more seafarers on board.

Clause 44 provides that the Authority may, from time to time, issue or approve one or more codes of practice, for the purpose of providing practical guidance on measures necessary to ensure the safety and health of seafarers, including measures on occupational health protection and medical care on board ship, and sets out provisions for matters connected therewith.

Clause 45 provides for the use of approved codes of practice in any proceedings for an offence under the Bill.

Clause 46 enables the Director to appoint an inspector to investigate into the cause and circumstances of any occupational accident, injury or disease arising from service on board any ship.

PART VIII

Clauses 47 to 54 implement paragraphs 2 and 3 of Article V and Regulations 5.1, 5.1.1, 5.1.2, 5.1.3 and 5.1.4 of the Convention which set out the responsibilities of Singapore as a flag State which is a party to the Convention, with respect to ships under its jurisdiction that fly its flag, to ensure that the ships are inspected for compliance with the requirements of, and carry the necessary Maritime Labour Certificate and Declaration of Maritime Labour Compliance as required by, the Convention.

Clause 47(1) applies Part VIII (with the exception of clause 49) to any Singapore ship, ordinarily engaged in commercial activities, which is of 500 gross tonnage or above, engaged in international voyages, or operating from a port or between ports in another country, wherever the ship may be. Clause 47(2) applies clause 49 to any Singapore ship (including those below 500 gross tonnage), ordinarily engaged in commercial activities, wherever the ship may be. Clause 47(3) defines certain terms used in the Part.

Clause 48 provides that no ship referred to in clause 47(1) can go to sea unless the shipowner or the master has been issued with a valid Maritime Labour Certificate or interim Maritime Labour Certificate, and the ship carries on board a Declaration of Maritime Labour Compliance written in English.

Clause 49 provides for Singapore ships, ordinarily engaged in commercial activities, to be inspected by the Director, a surveyor of ships or a Recognised Organisation for compliance with the requirements of the Bill and other relevant written law. The Recognised Organisations are the international ship classification societies appointed by the Director for the purpose of inspecting Singapore ships on behalf of the Authority as the national maritime flag administration. The term “other relevant written law” is defined in clause 2(1) to mean other written law implementing requirements of the Convention as specified in the First Schedule. As some of the requirements of the Convention will be implemented by certain provisions of the Merchant Shipping Act and certain regulations made under that Act, and the Work Injury Compensation Act, as listed in the First Schedule, the inspection under clause 49 will also cover compliance with these other written laws.

Clause 50 provides for the Director or a Recognised Organisation to issue the Declaration of Maritime Labour Compliance.

Clause 51 provides that the Director or a Recognised Organisation may issue an interim Maritime Labour Certificate in respect of a ship under specified circumstances.

Clause 53 provides that the Maritime Labour Certificate will, unless suspended or withdrawn, be valid for a period not exceeding 5 years, and sets out the circumstances and the conditions for the suspension or withdrawal of the Maritime Labour Certificate.

Clause 54(1) provides that the Maritime Labour Certificate and the Declaration of Maritime Labour Compliance shall be displayed in a conspicuous place on board the ship where it is available to the seafarers. Clause 54(2) implements paragraph 2 of Standard A5.1.1 of the Convention, and requires the ship to carry on board a copy of the Convention and a copy of the Bill, regulations made under the Bill and the written law specified in the First Schedule.

PART IX

COMPLAINTS

Clauses 55 and 56 implement Regulation 5.1.5 and Standard A5.1.5 of the Convention relating to the on-board complaint procedures for seafarers.

Clause 55 provides for the shipowner to ensure that there is on board his ship appropriate procedures to allow seafarers to make a complaint, and for the procedures to follow any complaint made.

Clause 56 provides that a copy of the complaint procedures set out in clause 55 and other useful information are to be provided to seafarers.

Clause 58(4)(e) also seeks to implement Regulation 5.2.2 and Standard A5.2.2 relating to the on-shore complaint handling procedures. Inspections in ports promote universal implementation and enforcement of the Convention standards, and a level playing field for all applicable ships irrespective of whether or not their flag State has ratified and implemented the Convention.

Clause 57 provides for the application of this Part to any Singapore ship, ordinarily engaged in commercial activities, and any foreign ship, ordinarily engaged in commercial activities, when in Singapore.

Clause 58 provides for inspections in port to be carried out by a surveyor of ships or any person duly authorised by the Director, the procedures and powers for such inspections, and for matters connected therewith. A Singapore ship will be inspected for compliance with the requirements of the Bill and other relevant written law as specified in the First Schedule, whilst a foreign ship will be inspected for compliance with the requirements of the Convention.

Clause 59 enables the Director to detain a ship to which this Part applies, if the ship is found with any non-conformity, and the conditions on board are clearly hazardous to the safety, health or security of the seafarers or the non-conformity constitutes a serious or repeated breach of the aforesaid requirements, until such non-conformity has been rectified, or the Director has accepted a plan of action to rectify such non-conformity and is satisfied that the plan will be implemented in an expeditious manner.
