(2) The amount of the PIC enhanced deduction, PIC cash payout or PIC bonus that may be disallowed under subsection (1) is the amount resulting from the PIC arrangement being abusive as defined under subsection (10). 30

(3) Notwithstanding the provisions of this Act, the amount referred to in subsection (4) of a PIC cash payout or PIC bonus paid to a person that was based on a claim that arose from an abusive PIC arrangement shall be recoverable by the Comptroller from the person as a debt due to the Government.

(4) The amount of the PIC cash payout or PIC bonus that is recoverable under subsection (3) is the amount resulting from the PIC arrangement being abusive as defined under subsection (10).

(5) The amount that is recoverable under subsection (3) shall be payable at the place stated in the notice served by the Comptroller on the person within 30 days after the service of the notice.

(8) In this section, an arrangement is a PIC arrangement if the obtaining of a PIC cash payout, PIC bonus or PIC enhanced deduction, or a higher amount of a PIC cash payout, PIC bonus or PIC enhanced deduction, was the purpose or one of the purposes of the arrangement (referred to in this section as the relevant purpose).

(9) In this section, a PIC arrangement is abusive if —

(a) it consists or makes use of one or more artificial, contrived or fraudulent steps that is intended to achieve the relevant purpose;

(b) the arrangement results in the consideration paid or payable for the property or services in question being of a greater value than the open market value of the property or services, and there is no bona fide commercial reason for the difference in the values apart from the relevant purpose; or

(c) in any other case, there is no bona fide commercial reason for entering into the arrangement or a transaction forming part of the arrangement apart from the relevant purpose.

(10) In this section, the amount of PIC enhanced deduction, PIC cash payout or PIC bonus resulting from a PIC arrangement being abusive is —

- (a) if the arrangement is abusive by reason of subsection (9)(a), the amount that results or has resulted from the use of the artificial, contrived or fraudulent step or steps, excluding any amount the person concerned is entitled to if the step or steps had not been used; 10

Examples

- (i) A enters into a contract for training for his employees. The right to training may be exchanged for goods. Expenditure for the goods is not eligible for a PIC cash payout. A exchanged the right to training for those goods and made a claim for a PIC cash payout in respect of the expenditure. The contract and the exchange together form an abusive PIC arrangement. The amount of the PIC cash payout that results from the arrangement being abusive for the purposes of subsections (1) and (3) is the full amount of the payout. 20
- (ii) A, in order to obtain a higher amount of PIC cash payout, purchases more equipment than he needs for his business. The purchase of the excess equipment is an abusive PIC arrangement. The amount of the PIC cash payout that results from the arrangement being abusive for the purposes of subsections (1) and (3) is the amount corresponding to the price paid for the excess equipment. 30
- (iii) A and B, in order to help each other obtain a PIC cash payout, sell to each other equipment that performs the same function. The sales are abusive PIC arrangements. The amount of the PIC cash payout that results from the arrangement being abusive for the purposes of subsections (1) and (3) is the full amount of the payout. 35

(iv) A enters into a contract for training for his employees. The contract price for the training includes both the value of the training and the value of other goods to be given to the trainees. Expenditure for those goods is not eligible for a PIC cash payout. The purpose for setting the price for the training in this way is to enable a higher PIC cash payout to be paid to A. The contract is an abusive PIC arrangement. The amount of the PIC cash payout that results from the arrangement being abusive for the purposes of subsections (1) and (3) is the amount corresponding to the price for those other goods.

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

This Bill seeks to implement the tax changes in the Government's 2014 Budget Statement and to make certain other amendments to the Income Tax Act (Cap. 134), and to make a related amendment to the Economic Expansion Incentives (Relief from Income Tax) Act (Cap. 86).

Clause 1 relates to the short title and commencement.

Clause 2 amends section 6 (Official secrecy) to ensure that a spontaneous exchange of information permitted under an arrangement with another country can occur without breaching the official secrecy obligations of section 6, even though the exchange is not mandated by the arrangement. Such an exchange of information is permitted where the Comptroller of Income Tax (the Comptroller) is of the view that the information he holds is foreseeably relevant to the administration and enforcement of the tax law of that country.

Clause 3 amends section 10 (Charge of income tax) to provide that where no annual value has been ascribed to any property under the Valuation List, its annual value may be ascertained by reference to the definition of that term in the Property Tax Act (Cap. 254), i.e. its market rent. The Minister is further given the power to make regulations to prescribe the value of certain perquisites (viz. furniture and fittings in a place of residence provided by the employer) which form part of the gains or profits from employment that are chargeable to tax.

Section 10 is also amended —

- (a) to modify the definition of “foreign investor” to provide that, in the case of a unit holder which is a company, the requirement that at least 80% of the number of its issued shares must be beneficially owned directly or indirectly by foreigners who are not resident in Singapore, applies regardless of the number of shareholders of the company. The definition is further amended to exclude a company carrying on business in Singapore through a permanent establishment, and a trust fund whose trustee carries out his duties through a permanent establishment in Singapore. The term “foreign investor” is used in section 10(20) and (20A) (under which distributions of income of a designated unit trust which does not form part of the trustee's statutory income is treated as the income of certain unitholders) and the new section 10(20D) to describe unit holders to whom the provisions do not apply;

- (b) to insert new subsections (20B) to (20F) to provide that when certain events occur in relation to a unit trust income from which did not form part of its trustee's statutory income in an earlier year of assessment by reason of section 35(12), such income that has yet to be distributed will be treated as income of certain unit holders, and the trustee of the unit trust must inform the Comptroller and the affected unit holders of this within the time and in the form and manner specified by the Comptroller. The events include the dissolution of the trust, the failure of the unit trust to qualify for the tax treatment under section 35(12), the failure of the trustee to elect for the tax treatment, and the election by the trustee for the tax treatment to apply to only part of his income for a year of assessment; and
- (c) to make certain amendments that are consequential on the change of the definition of "designated unit trust" in section 35.

Clause 4 repeals sections 10I (Reduction of share capital), 10J (Shares buyback), 10K (Shares redemption) and 10M (Buyback of preferential shares) as the provisions are no longer relevant under a one-tier corporate tax system.

Clause 5 amends section 10L (Withdrawals from Supplementary Retirement Scheme) to treat as sums withdrawn from an SRS account, the prescribed value of any investment made using SRS funds where such investment has been deducted from the balance in the SRS account following an approval by the SRS operator concerned. The regulations made under that section will be amended to set out the circumstances in which an SRS operator may approve the deduction of an investment from the balance of an SRS account. The value of the investment which has been so deducted will then be treated as having been withdrawn from the account and chargeable to tax in accordance with section 10L.

Subsection (3D) of section 10L is also amended to modify the operation of subsection (3)(a). Subsection (3)(a) provides that only 50% of a complete withdrawal from an SRS account is chargeable to tax if the account is maintained for a period of at least 10 years from the date of first contribution, and belongs to a person who is not a citizen or permanent resident of Singapore on the date of the withdrawal and for a continuous period of at least 10 years before that date. The amended subsection (3D) provides that for subsection (3)(a) to operate in a case where SRS funds have been used for investment, each investment must either have been liquidated, returned to the SRS account and withdrawn together with the rest of the funds in the account, or have been approved by the SRS operator to be deducted from the balance in the SRS account on the same date as the date of the withdrawal of the rest of the funds in the account.

Clause 6 inserts a new section 100 to treat distributions from Additional Tier 1 capital instruments that satisfy MAS Notice 637, as interest derived from debt securities. Such distribution will (subject to conditions) then be deductible as interest under section 14(1) against the income of the issuer of the instruments, and taxable as interest income in the hands of the holders of the instruments, unless exempt from tax. Because it is treated as interest derived from debt securities, it may be taxed at the concessionary tax rate that applies to income derived from qualifying debt securities, where applicable.

Clause 7 amends section 12 (Sources of income) to provide that a payment borne by a person resident in Singapore or a Singapore permanent establishment for a right to use software, information or digitised goods is not to be treated as having been derived from Singapore and therefore chargeable to tax, unless it is a payment for the right to commercially exploit the copyright in it. Examples of such payments include payment for shrink-wrap software, downloadable software, and software bundled with computer hardware where the end user does not have a right to exploit the copyright in the software.

Clause 8 amends section 13 (Exempt income) to provide that income from certain debt securities is not exempt from tax if 50% or more of the securities which are outstanding at any time during the life of the issue of the securities are owned or funded by a related party of the issuer, and not (as currently worded) if 50% or more of the issue of the securities are so owned or funded, whether or not they remain outstanding.

Section 13 is further amended by deleting and substituting subsection (12A) and inserting new subsections (12B) and (12C). The current subsection (12A) revokes with effect from 1st April 2015 all orders made which exempt from tax income received by the trustee of a real estate investment trust (REIT) or a wholly-owned subsidiary of a REIT. The new subsections (12A) and (12B) provide that the exemptions under such orders shall continue to have effect on or after 1st April 2015 but only in relation to income derived from immovable property situated outside Singapore, acquired by the trustee or subsidiary before 1st April 2015, and remained beneficially owned by the trustee or subsidiary on the date of receipt of the income. The new subsection (12C) provides that the exemption on or after 1st April 2015 is subject to the conditions and restrictions of exemption prescribed in the order.

Lastly, section 13 is amended to expand the definition of “qualifying debt securities” to include Additional Tier 1 capital instruments, in order to apply the various tax exemptions applicable to qualifying debt securities to such instruments if the conditions of exemption are met. As a result, references in other laws to this definition in section 13 (e.g. in sections 10(23) and 10N(12)) will similarly include Additional Tier 1 capital instruments.

Clause 9 amends section 13C (Exemption of income of trustee of trust fund arising from funds managed by fund manager in Singapore) to provide that the tax exemption under that section does not apply to income derived by a trustee of a prescribed trust fund on or after 1st April 2014 from funds managed in Singapore. The treatment of such income will be governed by section 13CA. However, the section will continue to apply to such income derived between 1st April 2014 and the end of the basis period in which that date falls, if the trustee has a basis period straddling 1st April 2014 and he makes an election for such application.

Clause 10 amends section 13CA (Exemption of income of non-resident arising from funds managed by fund manager in Singapore) —

- (a) to extend the tax exemption under that section to the income of a prescribed person that is incorporated or constituted before 1st April 2019, and of a person who is prescribed as a prescribed person before that date;
- (b) to provide that the Minister may not prescribe as a prescribed person certain descriptions of trustees and companies (as these persons already enjoy tax incentives under other parts of the Act);
- (c) to enable the Minister or a person appointed by him to remit or refund any penalty paid or payable under the section subject to conditions, and to recover the amount remitted or refunded for a breach of any condition; and
- (d) to provide that, in determining whether the investment limits of an investor in a prescribed person that is a company have been breached, the investor's holdings will be computed based on the net asset value of the issued securities (instead of the value of the securities at the time of their issuance or the prescribed time, as applicable). This change will apply to any prescribed person whose basis period ends on or after 1st April 2014.

Clause 11 amends section 13G (Exemption of income of foreign trust) to introduce sunset provisions for the tax incentive.

Clause 12 amends section 13O (Exemption of income of foreign account of philanthropic purpose trust) for a similar purpose to clause 11.

Clause 13 amends section 13Q (Exemption of relevant income of prescribed locally administered trust) for a similar purpose to clause 11.

Clause 14 amends section 13R (Exemption of income of company incorporated and resident in Singapore arising from funds managed by fund manager in Singapore) —

- (a) to extend the period for approving a company for the purpose of a tax exemption under that section for 5 years till 31st March 2019;
- (b) to enable the Minister or a person appointed by him to remit or refund any penalty paid or payable under the section subject to conditions, and to recover the amount remitted or refunded for a breach of any condition;

and

- (c) to provide that, in determining whether the investment limits of an investor in an approved company have been breached, the investor's holdings will be computed based on the net asset value of the issued securities (instead of the value of the securities at the time of their issuance or the prescribed time, as applicable). This change will apply to any approved company whose basis period ends on or after 1st April 2014.

Clause 15 amends various terms in section 13V (Exemption of income derived by law practice from international arbitration held in Singapore) arising from amendments made to the Legal Profession Act (Cap. 161) by the Legal Profession (Amendment) Act 2008 (Act 19 of 2008).

Clause 16 amends section 13X (Exemption of income arising from funds managed by fund manager in Singapore) to extend the approval period for the purpose of the tax exemption under that section for 5 years till 31st March 2019.

Clause 17 amends section 13Y (Exemption of certain income of prescribed sovereign fund entity and approved foreign government-owned entity) —

- (a) to extend to 31st March 2019 the period by which a foreign government owned entity may be approved for the purpose of granting tax exemption on the qualifying income of such entity, or of a sovereign fund entity whose funds are managed by such entity; and
- (b) to allow regulations to be made for renewing approvals.

Clause 18 amends section 14 (Deductions allowed) to remove provisions that are no longer required, and to provide that the deduction allowable to an employer for contributions made for an employee for a period commencing on or after 1st January 2015 to the Central Provident Fund or any approved pension or provident fund designated by the Minister, must not exceed 17% of the remuneration paid by the employer to the employee for that period.

Clause 19 amends section 14A (Deduction for costs for protecting intellectual property) —

- (a) to extend till the year of assessment 2020, the period in which a deduction for qualifying intellectual property registration costs incurred for the purposes of a trade or business may be allowed; and
- (b) to extend till the year of assessment 2018, the period in which an enhanced deduction for such costs may be allowed.

Clause 20 amends section 14D (Expenditure on research and development) to extend till the year of assessment 2025, the period in which a deduction for expenditure incurred on research and development in Singapore not related to a person's trade or business may be allowed.

Clause 21 amends section 14DA (Enhanced deduction for qualifying expenditure on research and development) —
