(d) to be sold (by public auction or otherwise) at once and the proceeds of sale to be paid into the Consolidated Fund; or

(e) to be destroyed or otherwise disposed of at such time and in such manner as the Commissioner of Lands thinks fit.

25 (6) If a person who appears, to the satisfaction of the Commissioner of Lands, to be the owner of any removed material moved or removed under subsection (1) and not to be a person in default with complying with the encroachment notice concerned, claims —

30 (a) after that removed material has been sold, destroyed or disposed of under subsection (5); but

(b) before the end of one year starting the date the removed material was moved or removed under subsection (1), the Authority may compensate, out of the funds of the Authority, the person for the loss of the removed material, less reasonable costs and expenses incurred by the Authority in storing and selling, destroying or disposing of the removed material. 5

Recovery of expenses for executing encroachment notice

14.—(1) All expenses reasonably incurred by the Authority in relation to the execution of any thing or work under section 13(1) in respect of State land and section 13(2) (including storing of any removed material) are recoverable from the person in default starting the date on which the thing or work is completed. 10

(2) The Commissioner of Lands —

(a) may certify the expenses due under this section and the names of the persons liable for the expenses; and 15

(b) may apportion the expenses among the persons named in the certificate.

(3) A copy of the certificate mentioned in subsection (2) must be given to every person named in the certificate.

(4) If any sum or any part of the sum due to the Authority under this section remains unpaid at the end of one month starting the date the certificate under subsection (3) is given, or any further period that the Authority may allow, the sum or part is deemed to be arrears. 20

(5) A certificate purporting to be made under subsection (2) by the Commissioner of Lands is prima facie evidence of the facts certified in the certificate and that the Commissioner of Lands had made the certificate. 25

(6) The Authority must refund the deposit or any part of the deposit, after deducting any costs and expenses reasonably incurred by the Authority, if the thing or work required to be executed by the encroachment notice has been executed to the satisfaction of the Commissioner of Lands. 30

Objection procedure

15 15.—(1) A person to whom an encroachment notice is given in respect of any State land may, within the objection period for the encroachment notice, give the Authority an objection in writing (called in this Act an objection) objecting to the encroachment notice.

(2) An objection must —

(b) state the basis for the person's authority to do the following, whichever is applicable:

10 (i) to occupy or live on the State land in question;

(ii) to erect any structure on, under or over the State land;

(iii) to carry on, or cause or allow, any activity mentioned in section 5(1)(c), (d), (e), (f), (g), (h), (i) or (j);

15 (iv) to claim an interest in any structure on, under or over the State land.

Proceedings upon objection

16.—(1) On receiving an objection to an encroachment notice relating to State land, an authorised officer may make a complaint to a Magistrate under section 151 of the Criminal Procedure Code 2010.

20 (2) Sections 153, 154 and 156 of the Criminal Procedure Code 2010 apply to proceedings regarding a complaint mentioned in subsection (1) subject to this Act.

25 (3) Where any proceedings regarding a complaint mentioned in subsection (1) have started and any party to the proceedings claims that that party has title to the State land in question, that party may, at any time in those proceedings, apply to the Magistrate to stay the proceedings on the ground that the party intends to commence proceedings in the General Division of the High Court for a determination of that party's claim.

(4) Upon an application under subsection (3), the Magistrate must, if he or she is satisfied that the claim is genuine, make an order, upon any terms that he or she thinks fit, staying the proceedings regarding a complaint mentioned in subsection (1), pending the determination of the claim by the General Division of the High Court.

(a) the person to whom the land was alienated or demised by or on behalf of the State; or

25

(3) Failure to publish a resumption notice in respect of any declaration under subsection (1) does not invalidate the declaration.

(4) If, at the end of 3 months after the day on which a resumption notice is published in accordance with subsection (2) with respect to any land —

5 (a) there is no person who appears, to the satisfaction of the Collector, to have a claim to the land or to any interest in the land; or

(b) there is such a person but that person has not exercised the person's right to recover possession of that land by a claim,

10 that land is deemed forfeited to the State immediately after the end of that period of 3 months; and any grant or lease affecting, and any deed purporting to deal with, the land or any part of the land that is forfeited to the State under this section is void insofar as it relates to that land or part thereof.

15 (5) The Collector must cause to be published a notice that the land is forfeited to the State under subsection (4) —

(a) in the Gazette; and

(b) in any other manner that will secure adequate publicity for the fact of forfeiture of that land.

Limitation of claim for compensation

20 19. If, within a period of 6 years after the date of forfeiture of any land under section 18, any person establishes a claim to the land or to any interest in the land to the satisfaction of the Authority, that person is entitled to receive out of the Consolidated Fund any sum that the Minister may direct, which sum cannot exceed the appraised value of 25 that land as at the date the notice mentioned in section 18(5)(a) concerning the land was published.

No adverse possession of State land

30 20. No State land shall be acquired by possession or unlawful occupation, and the provisions of the Limitation Act 1959 shall not apply to any action brought by the Government for the recovery of State land.

(7) A person who, without reasonable excuse, fails to do anything required of the person by an authorised officer or enforcement officer under subsection (1) shall be guilty of an offence and shall be liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding $10,000.

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

This Bill seeks to repeal the State Lands Encroachments Act 1883 and re-enact it with modern provisions so as to ensure that State land in general is protected from damage and improper use.

The Bill contains provisions that make it an offence for a person to use State land for certain purposes, or to pollute or contaminate State land. The Bill also confers new powers on the authorised officers from the Singapore Land Authority and enforcement officers to issue orders to stop unlawful or unsafe activities and certain remediation and enforcement powers (including conferring powers to give directions) to protect State land.

Part 1 introduces the fundamental concepts used in the Bill.

Part 2 sets out the main offences connected with improper use and unauthorised activities on State land and the punishments for the offences and outlines the proceedings in court that may be taken to recover State land from improper use and unauthorised activities.

Part 3 sets out powers that may be exercised without applying to the court so as to stop improper use or unauthorised activities on State land.

Part 4 provides for the resumption of land to become State land again.

Part 5 provides for various powers of enforcement exercisable in the administration of the Bill.

Part 6 provides for appointment of officers for the administration of the Bill.

Part 7 contains standard provisions as well as the power to make regulations.

Part 8 sets out the different consequential and related amendments to certain other Acts and saving and transitional provisions.

PART 1 PRELIMINARY

Clause 1 relates to the short title and commencement.

Clause 2 is a general interpretation provision. It contains definitions of terms used in several Parts of the Bill.

The word “land” has been defined to include any structure or premises in, under or over the land and any foreshore.

The word “Authority” means the Singapore Land Authority established under the Singapore Land Authority Act 2001. By clause 28, it is a statutory function of the Authority to administer the Bill.

Clause 3 sets out the definition of “State land”, which is a key term used throughout the Bill.

In general, State land means land in Singapore that is unalienated land.

“Unalienated land” is defined as land in Singapore in respect of which no grant (whether in fee simple or in perpetuity) or lease, and no licence to occupy, is granted or issued, under the Foreshores Act 1920, the State Lands Act 1920, the State Lands Ordinance 1886 or the Crown Lands Ordinance 1886.

For example, land in respect of which a lease or licence to occupy has been issued but is subsequently terminated or otherwise revoked. As a lease or licence is terminated or revoked, and no lease or licence is issued in respect of the land, the land becomes unalienated land upon the ending of that lease or licence.

Land ceases to be State land if the land is sold, or lawfully contracted to be sold, and the purchase price or other consideration (if any) for the sale has been received by the Government (or a person on behalf of the Government), or the land is lawfully contracted to be sold by award of tender and the deposit has been received by the Government or a person on behalf of the Government. However, the latter land becomes State land again if the purchaser fails to complete the purchase.

State land is also defined by clause 3 to include land in Singapore that vests in the Government or becomes State land because of the operation of the Bill (such as by resumption under Part 4), or a declaration or other instrument under another Act (such as vested street reserves) and remains unalienated land, or that is surrendered to the Government by the owner of the land or holder of a lease for that land and remains unalienated land.

To protect land in Singapore that has been identified for compulsory acquisition until possession of the land is taken, State land is defined to also include any parcel of land that is the subject of a notification in the Gazette made under the provisions of section 3 or 5 of the Land Acquisition Act 1966 unless the notification is cancelled before possession of the land is taken by a Collector of Land Revenue (called a Collector) under that Act. This is the present state of affairs under section 20 of the State Lands Encroachments Act 1883.

To avoid overlapping laws and criminalising activities on State lands that are under the management of other public sector agencies, the scope of the Bill does not extend to unalienated land that is a drainage reserve that is vested in the Government under section 29 of the Sewerage and Drainage Act 1999, unalienated land that is railway premises or any part of a railway, and unalienated land that is set aside under the Parks and Trees Act 2005 as national parks, nature reserves, public parks, green verges or turfed open spaces to be managed and maintained by the National Parks Board.

Unalienated land that is a public street within the meaning of the Street Works Act 1995, a street reserve that is vested in the Government under section 14 of that Act or a backlane vested in the Government is also not subject to the Bill as they are under the charge of the Land Transport Authority of Singapore by mandate of Parliament.

Clause 4 sets out the purposes of the Bill. They are to ensure that State land is protected from damage and improper use so as to facilitate the public use and enjoyment of appropriate State land, to facilitate infrastructure and economic development on State land, and to support the management of State land in such a way that both the land and its resources are sustained in perpetuity. These purposes serve to guide the exercise of discretionary powers and the application of the provisions of the Bill when enacted.

PART 2

IMPROPER USE OF STATE LAND

Part 2 sets out activities which are offences and the punishments for the offences and outlines the proceedings in court that may be taken to recover State land from improper use and unauthorised activities on State land.

Clause 5 makes it an offence for a person who, without lawful authority, intentionally does any of the following acts:

- (a) occupy or live on State land;
- (b) erect a structure on, under or over State land;
- (c) clear, dig up or cultivate State land;

- (d) interfere with any substance on, in or forming part of State land, which includes removing, cutting, digging up, quarrying, extracting, disturbing, displacing or stacking and heaping the substance;
- (e) deposit or leave on State land any waste, goods or any other thing (whether or not of a similar kind);
- (f) park or leave any vehicle or vessel (or part of a vehicle or vessel) on State land;
- (g) damage or enclose State land;
- (h) cut, strip, obtain, remove, destroy or damage any vegetation on State land;
- (i) dig for, extract, obtain, remove, destroy or damage any forest product from State land;
- (j) abandon or release any animal (for which the person is responsible) onto State land.

It is also an offence to cause or allow without lawful authority any activity mentioned in the paragraphs above to be carried out.

The word “waste” is defined by clause 2 to mean any garbage, rubbish or refuse, any construction debris, demolition debris or renovation debris, any solid or liquid waste matter (whether domestic or commercial), any sand, soil, rocks, building material or building component, equipment, machinery or part of any equipment or machinery. The word “waste” also covers any other material, substance or thing (whether or not of a similar kind) deposited at a place if its size, shape, nature or volume adversely affects the proper use of the place. This can encompass any form of litter, packaging, dead animals and garden cuttings.

The word “erect” has been defined in clause 2 in relation to a structure as including to place or maintain, or replace, renew or restore, the structure.

The phrase “lawful authority” is defined in clause 2 to mean with the permission of the Authority, or as required or allowed by or under any written law.

The word “intentionally” has the meaning given by section 26C of the Penal Code 1871, that is, deliberately, or causing an effect with the purpose of causing that effect or knowing that that effect would be virtually certain (barring an unforeseen intervention) to result.

The offence under clause 5 is an arrestable offence, akin to the similar offences in sections 17, 18, 19 and 20 of the Environmental Public Health Act 1987.

Clause 6 sets out the punishment for committing an offence under clause 5. It provides that a person who is guilty of an offence under clause 5 is liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding $50,000 or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding 6 months or to both. If the offence continues after conviction, the offender may face a further fine not exceeding $500 for every day or part of a day during which the offence continues after conviction.

However, an enhanced punishment is prescribed in clause 6 for a repeat offender of an offence under clause 5 of depositing or leaving on State land any waste, goods or any other thing by using a motor vehicle or vessel, or causing or allowing any of this to happen, without lawful authority. Where the accused is a repeat offender, the punishment is a fine not exceeding $100,000 or imprisonment for a term not exceeding 12 months or both.

Clause 5(3) provides that in criminal proceedings against an accused for an offence under that clause, it is not necessary for the prosecution to prove that the accused knew or had reason to believe that the land where the offence was committed is State land. The prosecution still has the burden of showing a lack of lawful authority.

However, clause 7(1) states that it is a defence to the charge for the accused in proceedings for an offence under clause 5 to prove, on a balance of probabilities, that the accused did not know, and could not reasonably have been expected to know, that the land was State land.

For example, the OneMap app, which is presently widely available to the public, may be relied on to find out whether any place is State land or private land but not everyone is digitally savvy. Hence, an individual who has no access to or is unfamiliar with using the OneMap app and who wanders into a large unenclosed tract of State land where there is no signage may still have a defence.

Clause 7 also provides an additional defence in proceedings against an accused for an offence under clause 5 for erecting or placing any structure in any subterranean space that is State land, or for maintaining, replacing, renewing or restoring any such structure. The defence is available to anyone who is entitled to exercise rights under the easement of subjacent support conferred by section 10 of the State Lands Act 1920. This would usually be the grantee or lessee of land.

The person must also be able to show that the erection or placing of the structure, or the maintenance, replacement, renewal or restoration of the structure (as the case may be) even if deeper than -30.000 metres from the Singapore Height Datum, is reasonably necessary to give effect to the easement of support, and the person has planning permission to do so.

Clause 8 empowers a court before which any person is convicted of an offence under clause 5 to make orders against the offender in addition to any fine imposed for the offence. The court may order payment to the Authority as agent of the Government of sums equal to the value of any substance removed from State land, the value of any forest products taken from State land or damaged or destroyed, the costs and expenses incurred by the Authority or an authorised officer in connection with prevention, control, abatement or mitigation of any damage to State land caused by the commission of the offence or making good any resulting damage to State land, or a sum that is in compensation for any loss or damage suffered by the Government by reason of the commission of the offence.

The word “damage” is defined in clause 2 to include contaminate, such as by way of pollution or other hazardous activity, not necessarily on the State land itself.

An example of compensation for any loss or damage would include the value of property on the State land destroyed or contaminated by reason of the offence under clause 5 (like polluting the land or removal of minerals or valuable timber).

Clause 8(1) does not limit section 359 of the Criminal Procedure Code 2010 where a court before which a person is convicted of any offence must, after the conviction, consider whether or not to make an order for the payment by that person of a sum to be fixed by the court by way of compensation to the person injured, in respect of his or her person, property or character by the offence or offences for which the sentence is passed.

Clause 8 also empowers the court before which any person is convicted of an offence under clause 5 in relation to any State land to order the convicted person to take any steps specified in the order to prevent, control, abate or mitigate any damage to the State land caused by the commission of the offence, to make good any resulting damage to the State land or to prevent the continuance or recurrence of the offence (such as by leaving the State land or demolishing or removing any unauthorised structure on that State land, and to dispose of the structure and any resulting debris from the demolition).

In addition, the court may, after convicting or finding guilty a person of an offence under clause 5 with respect to any State land, order an electricity licensee to discontinue the supply of electricity or to disconnect or divert the supply of gas to the person with respect to the State land. The court may also order the Public Utilities Board to stop, divert or turn off the supply of water by severing or disconnecting any pipe or other works through which water is supplied to the person with respect to that State land. The order may be made despite any agreement made for the supply of electricity, gas or water with respect to that State land.

Clause 8(5) therefore provides immunity for an electricity licensee, a gas licensee or the Public Utilities Board, or any person acting on behalf of the electricity licensee, gas licensee or Public Utilities Board, in respect of anything done or omitted to be done with reasonable care and in good faith under such an order of the court.

Clause 9 allows an interim injunction to be ordered by a court for an interim injunction before a conviction is secured for an offence under clause 5, in response to an application by the Commissioner of Lands.

A court may make an interim injunction against a person who is alleged to be committing or have committed an offence under clause 5 on any State land, only if it is satisfied, on a balance of probabilities, that the person is committing or has committed an offence under clause 5 on the State land and due to the commission of that offence, irreparable damage or harm is or is being, or is likely to be, caused to the State land, or other land adjacent to that State land, the State land is in a condition as to collapse or partially collapse, or cause a collapse or partial collapse of other land adjacent to that State land, or the State land is otherwise dangerous or likely to be otherwise dangerous in any other way to persons on or near the State land.

The court must also be satisfied, on a balance of probabilities, that it is impracticable in the circumstances of the particular case for proceedings under Part 3 to effectively prevent, alleviate or minimise any damage, collapse or danger (such as an encroachment notice) and it is necessary or expedient for an interim injunction under clause 9(2) to be made to prevent, alleviate or minimise the damage, collapse or danger before criminal proceedings against the person conclude.

Clause 10 is a provision similar to sections 17(4) and 20(2) of the Environmental Public Health Act 1987 and requires the giving of information to the Authority about unlawful depositing, etc., of matter on State land using a motor vehicle.

Where the driver or a passenger of a motor vehicle is alleged or suspected to be guilty of an offence of depositing or leaving on State land any waste, goods or any other thing, the owner of the motor vehicle is under a duty to give information required by an authorised officer or an enforcement officer as to the identity and address of the person who, at or about the time of the alleged offence, was the driver or a passenger of the motor vehicle.

In addition, any other person who was or should have been in charge or in control of the motor vehicle at or about the time of the alleged offence must, if so required, give any information which it is in that other person's power to give and which may lead to the identification of the driver or passengers of the motor vehicle.

Failure without reasonable excuse to give the information within 14 days after the date on which the information was required is an offence. The penalty is a fine not exceeding $10,000. There is no excuse of self-incrimination.

Clause 11 makes it clear that a prosecution of a person for an offence under clause 5 does not affect, and is unaffected by, any other proceeding or action taken under any other Part of the Bill in relation to the conduct giving rise to the offence.

PART 3

PROCEEDINGS TO STOP ENCROACHMENT

Part 3 sets out powers that may be exercised without applying to the court so as to stop improper use of or unauthorised activities on State land.

Clause 12 provides for encroachment notices which may be given by an authorised officer who has reasonable cause to believe that a person is committing an offence under clause 5 on any State land.

An encroachment notice relating to any State land may direct the person to whom it is given, to do all or any of the following as specified in the notice:

- (a) to leave the State land;
- (b) to demolish or remove any structure erected on, under or over the State land, and to dispose of the structure and any resulting debris from the demolition;
- (c) to remove from the State land any waste, goods or any other thing;
- (d) to stop removing or to not remove from the State land, goods, substances, forest products or anything else;
- (e) to do, or to refrain from doing, any works that are specified in the encroachment notice in order to rectify any damage to the State land as a result of, or to restore the State land to its state before, any unlawful activity mentioned in clause 5 done by the person, or caused or allowed by the person.

An encroachment notice relating to any State land must state the period within which the person must comply with the encroachment notice (called the compliance period) and the period within which the person may give an objection (called the objection period) to the encroachment notice.

A person who is given an encroachment notice must take, so far as is reasonably practicable and at the person's cost, any steps that are necessary to comply with the encroachment notice within the compliance period specified in that notice. However, the person, if entitled under clause 15, may give the Authority an objection within the objection period disputing the allegation of an encroachment.

A person who, without reasonable excuse, fails to comply with an encroachment notice shall be guilty of an offence and shall be liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding $10,000.

Clause 13 confers powers on the Authority to carry out an encroachment notice if the person who is required by clause 12(5) to comply with it fails to do so within the compliance period and does not give the Authority an objection to that encroachment notice within the objection period.

Clause 14 provides that all expenses reasonably incurred by the Authority in relation to carrying out an encroachment notice under clause 13 in respect of State land (including storing of any vehicle or thing removed), are recoverable from the person in default starting the date on which the thing or work is completed.

Clause 15 describes the objection procedure for a person to whom an encroachment notice is given in respect of any State land and who disputes the encroachment notice.

To object to an encroachment notice, the person given the encroachment notice has to give the Authority an objection in writing (called an objection) and within the objection period specified in the encroachment notice. The objection must state the person's authority to do what the encroachment notice requires the person to cease, e.g., to occupy or live on the State land in question, to erect any structure on, under or over the State land, or to claim an interest in any structure on, under or over the State land.

Clause 16 further elaborates on what happens after an objection is given. On receiving an objection to an encroachment notice relating to State land, an authorised officer may make a complaint to a Magistrate under section 151 of the Criminal Procedure Code 2010. Alternatively, the encroachment notice may be cancelled if there is merit in the case contained in the objection.

After a complaint is made to a Magistrate, and if the encroachment notice is not cancelled, the Magistrate may, following the procedure in sections 153, 154 and 156 of the Criminal Procedure Code 2010, issue a summons for the attendance of the person given the encroachment notice.

However, any party to the proceedings regarding the complaint, such as the person given the encroachment notice, who claims title to the State land in question may apply to the Magistrate to stay the proceedings on the ground that the party intends to commence proceedings in the General Division of the High Court for a decision regarding that party's claim. The Magistrate must stay the proceedings, if he or she is satisfied that the claim is genuine.

PART 4

RESUMPTION OF LAND

Part 4 sets out circumstances under which land that is alienated may be resumed to become State land. This is in addition to compulsory acquisition under the Land Acquisition Act 1966.

Clause 17 provides that alienated land which has been abandoned for 3 years or more by the person to whom it was alienated or demised, or any person claiming title through such a person, is forfeited to the State even though some person may be found in occupation of the land or of any part of that land. The forfeiture is subject to adherence to the process in clause 18.

Clause 18 sets out a procedure called resumption of land under which alienated land is forfeited to the State. The process may be initiated by a Collector with the approval of the Minister and involves a public declaration in the Gazette that any land has been abandoned for 3 years or more by the person to whom it was alienated or demised or any person claiming title through such a person, is liable to forfeiture to the State.

If, at the end of 3 months after the day on which a resumption notice is published in the Gazette with respect to any land, there is no person who appears, to the satisfaction of the Collector, to have a claim to the land or to any interest in the land, or there is such a person but that person has not exercised his or her right to recover possession of that land by a claim, the land is deemed forfeited to the State immediately after the end of that period of 3 months.

Clause 19 imposes a time bar on claims for compensation for land forfeited. A person has to establish a claim to the land or to any interest in the land forfeited under this Part within a period of 6 years after the date of forfeiture of any land.

Clause 20 provides that there can be no acquisition of State land by adverse possession. The provisions of the Limitation Act 1959 are disapplied with regard to any action brought by the Government for the recovery of State land.

PART 5

ENFORCEMENT

Part 5 provides for various powers of enforcement exercisable in the administration of the Bill. These powers are in addition to what is presently provided to officers of the Authority under section 31 of the Singapore Land Authority Act 2001.

Clause 21 makes it clear that the enforcement powers in this Part may be exercised only by authorised officers, and by enforcement officers to the extent allowed by Part 6, and only for these purposes:

- (a) inspecting any State land, including ascertaining whether an offence under the Bill has been committed, is being committed or is about to be committed;
- (b) to determine compliance with the Bill;
- (c) to determine whether information provided to the Authority or an authorised officer or enforcement officer under the Bill is correct;
- (d) to ascertain whether any of the powers conferred by or under the Bill on the Authority should or may be exercised.

Clause 22 covers a power to enter without warrant any land if there is reasonable suspicion that the land is used in the commission of an offence under the Bill, and to exercise general powers of inspection, such as to examine any thing (which may include a vehicle, vessel or an article) or observe any activity conducted in or on the land, to make a still or moving image or recording of the land and any thing in or on the land, and to inspect any document in or on the land and take extracts from, or make copies of, any such document, without paying any fee.

After entering, an authorised officer or enforcement officer may, under warrant of court, seize any thing found in or on the land which the authorised officer or enforcement officer reasonably suspects is evidential material relevant to an offence under the Bill.

Clause 23 confers power on an authorised officer or enforcement officer to require any person whom the officer has reason to believe to be acquainted with any facts or circumstances relevant to the reasonably suspected commission of an offence under the Bill, to provide documents and information that are within the knowledge of the person or in the person's custody or control, or to attend before an authorised officer within Singapore to answer questions or provide documents or information or both.

Clause 24 sets out a power for an authorised officer or enforcement officer who has reasonable grounds to suspect that an individual in, on or near any State land has committed, is committing, or is attempting to commit, an offence under the Bill in relation to the State land, to request the individual to state his or her name and residential address. If it is suspected on reasonable grounds that the name or address given in response to the request is false, the authorised officer or enforcement officer may require the individual to produce evidence of its correctness, including proof of identity.

This power is not a power of arrest and an authorised officer or enforcement officer may detain an individual only for so long as is reasonably necessary for the purposes of the clause.

It is an offence if the individual, without reasonable excuse, refuses or fails to comply with a request under clause 24 or in response to the request, gives a name that is false in a material particular, or gives an address other than the individual's full and correct residential address. The punishment is a fine not exceeding $10,000 or imprisonment for a term not exceeding 6 months or both.

Clause 25 provides for the disposal of seized or removed vehicles, things, etc., under the Bill which are produced in any criminal trial, and dealing with in accordance with section 364(1) of the Criminal Procedure Code 2010.

Clause 26 sets out the offence of intentionally failing to do anything required of the person under clause 22(1) by an authorised officer or enforcement officer; or knowingly obstructing or preventing, or attempting to obstruct or prevent, an authorised officer or enforcement officer in the discharge of the officer's powers or duties under the Bill.

Also created is an offence of intentionally or dishonestly removing or tampering with any encroachment notice given by an authorised officer or enforcement officer, or summons after the notice or summons is affixed on the land in accordance with clause 37(5) or (6).

Clause 27 deals with composition of offences. It provides that an authorised officer or enforcement officer specially authorised by the Authority may compound any offence under the Bill that is prescribed by regulations as a compoundable offence by collecting from a person reasonably suspected of having committed the offence a sum not exceeding the lower of either $5,000 or one half of the amount of the maximum fine that is prescribed for the offence.

PART 6

ADMINISTRATION

Part 6 provides for the appointment of officers for the administration of the Bill.

Clause 28 makes it a statutory function of the Authority to administer the Bill when enacted, and to administer and manage all State lands, and to undertake the resumption or forfeiture of land, in accordance with the Bill as an agent of the Government.

Clause 29 provides for the appointment of officers of the Authority as authorised officers. Whoever is the Commissioner of Lands is automatically an authorised officer.

Clause 30 provides for the appointment of enforcement officers from among public officers, and employees of any public authority (but not a Town Council) and any auxiliary police officer appointed under the Police Force Act 2004. The enforcement officer's role is to assist the Authority in the administration of the Bill in any particular area in Singapore. An enforcement officer is not an employee of the Authority.

Clause 31 enables the Authority to limit the powers in clause 22, 23 or 24 that may be exercised by an enforcement officer. The limit may be when, and where in Singapore, the enforcement officer may exercise powers in clause 22, 23 or 24 or the circumstances in which the enforcement officer may exercise those powers or any of them. The Authority cannot authorise an enforcement officer to arrest any individual.

PART 7

MISCELLANEOUS

Clause 32 makes clear the interface of the Bill with other Acts which deal with similar subject matters.

Clause 33 contains supplementary provisions of general application, commonly found in other Acts. The first confers on the Authority power to grant an extension of time to a person who is required by or under the Bill to do or not to do any thing or work where there are good reasons to do so.

The other is to ensure that documents prepared, issued or given under or for the purposes of the Bill are not invalidated only because of a misnomer or an inaccurate description of any person or place named or described in the document, so long as that person or place in the document is identifiable.

To avoid doubt, there is provision to make clear that an identification card for an authorised officer or enforcement officer may be issued under clause 29(5) or 30(3) in a digital form. This can be evidence of the issue thereof to an individual using information relating to the appointment as an authorised officer or enforcement officer (as the case may be) of the individual that is displayed on a mobile communication device or other electronic device.

Clauses 34 and 35 are standard provisions providing for the liability of officers of offenders who are corporations or unincorporated associations or partnerships.

Clause 36 confers on a Magistrate's Court and a District Court jurisdiction to try any offence under the Bill and to punish accordingly despite any limits set under other written law like the Criminal Procedure Code 2010.

Clause 37 deals with the service of documents permitted or required by the Bill to be served on a person.

Clause 37 also provides for special service arrangements for a person where, by the exercise of reasonable diligence, the name of the person to whom the document is to be given, or the business address, residential address or last email address of the person, cannot be ascertained. The document may be given by posting it on a website maintained by the Authority and prescribed by the Minister by notification in the Gazette for this purpose.

Clause 38 confers on the Authority the power to make regulations to give effect to the Bill, subject to the approval of the Minister.

Clause 39 requires all regulations made under the Bill to be presented to Parliament as soon as possible after their publication in the Gazette.

PART 8

AMENDMENTS TO OTHER ACTS AND FINAL PROVISIONS

Part 8 contains consequential and related amendments to other Acts and saving and transitional provisions.

Clause 40 makes a related amendment to the Land Titles Act 1993 to enable the making of an encroachment notice relating to any State land to be indicated on the land-register even though the encroachment notice does not denote any interest in the land.

Clause 41 makes several related amendments to the Parks and Trees Act 2005.

The first consists of inserting new sections 42A, 42B and 42C.

The new section 42A expressly empowers the Commissioner of Parks and Recreation, an authorised officer and a park ranger to require an owner or a person in charge of any vehicle, boat, trailer, skip, dumpster or other thing that is parked, moored or otherwise left in a national park, nature reserve or public park contrary to the Parks and Trees Act 2005 (including any subsidiary legislation made under that Act) to remove it from the national park, nature reserve or public park.

The Commissioner of Parks and Recreation, an authorised officer and a park ranger are respectively also empowered to order an owner or a person in charge of any sign, shrine, altar, religious object, shelter, structure or building that is affixed, set up or erected in a public park contrary to the Parks and Trees Act 2005 (including any subsidiary legislation made under that Act) to alter, demolish or remove the sign, shrine, altar, religious object, shelter, structure or building.

The new section 42B allows the Commissioner of Parks and Recreation, an authorised officer and a park ranger to directly remove from a national park, nature reserve or public park any vehicle, boat, trailer, skip, dumpster or other thing that is parked, moored or otherwise left in the national park, nature reserve or public park contrary to the Parks and Trees Act 2005, without prior notice under the new section 42A. This is permitted where the vehicle, boat, trailer, skip, dumpster or other thing is endangering or is expected to endanger other users of the national park, nature reserve or public park, or is causing or is likely to cause an obstruction to other users of the national park, nature reserve or public park.

The new section 42C applies to any sign, shrine, altar, religious object, shelter, structure or building that is affixed, set up or erected in a public park contrary to the Parks and Trees Act 2005 (including any subsidiary legislation made under that Act) which is in such a condition, or is used to carry such loads, as to be endangering or is expected to endanger other users of the public park, or is causing or is likely to cause an obstruction to other users of the public park. The new section 42C also extends to situations where there is either a serious and imminent risk of public disorder in the public park or an actual or imminent occurrence has happened or may happen that endangers or threatens the safety of users of the public park, because of any crowd, or any ceremony or other activity undertaken or which may be undertaken, at or around the unlawfully erected sign, shrine, altar, religious object, shelter, structure or building in a public park.

In these conditions, the Commissioner of Parks and Recreation or an authorised officer (but not a park ranger) is empowered to directly alter, demolish and remove the sign, shrine, altar, religious object, shelter, structure or building without prior notice under the new section 42A.

As a consequence, the existing sections 42(3) and 63(2)(a)(viii) are deleted.

The other amendment is to section 46 of the Parks and Trees Act 2005, which allows the Commissioner of Parks and Recreation to take steps to ensure that a section 42A notice is complied with and otherwise take remediation steps as regards the national park, nature reserve or public park, and to recover costs for that.

Finally, the new section 46A is introduced to deal with the disposal of the material removed under the new sections 42B and 42C and the amended section 46.

Clause 42 amends section 24 of the Sewerage and Drainage Act 1999 by creating a new offence where a person, without the prior approval of the Public Utilities Board, does certain activities that are unlawful under clause 5 within any drainage reserve that is State land.

The clause also empowers the Public Utilities Board to direct an offender to demolish or remove any structure erected on the drainage reserve, and to dispose of the structure and any resulting debris from the demolition and otherwise take remediation steps as regards the drainage reserve. Non-compliance with the direction will be an offence.

A new section 24A is introduced to deal with vegetation encroaching onto a drainage reserve that is State land. Other amendments are made to section 29 to make it clear that the vesting of land in the Government under that provision is not drainage reserve which is already State land.

Clause 43 contains firstly, consequential amendments to the Singapore Land Authority Act 2001 that update the cross references in that Act to the State Lands Encroachments Act 1883 to the Bill.

The second amendment is to channel fines, composition sums and financial penalties collected by the Authority to the Consolidated Fund.

Clause 44 amends section 32A of the Street Works Act 1995 by extending the powers of the Land Transport Authority of Singapore to move, remove and demolish structures which overhang or protrude over or are erected or maintained on any public street, five-footway or private footway, as to be an obstruction or inconvenience to public passage.

There are also expanded powers to immediately dispose of any article, thing or structure removed that is perishable or dangerous, etc., instead of keeping them in a holding yard, but subject to payment of compensation to the rightful owner if the claim is made within 12 months after disposal.

Clause 45 repeals the State Lands Encroachments Act 1883.

Clause 46 is a saving and transitional provision that preserves the legal status of any summons, warrant or notice to vacate under the repealed State Lands

Encroachments Act 1883 where these were issued or served before the repeal. All proceedings from that summons, warrant or notice are to continue according to the State Lands Encroachments Act 1883 as if it were not repealed.

A similar treatment is extended to resumption proceedings for abandoned lands started under the repealed State Lands Encroachments Act 1883 and pending. The resumption proceedings continue as if the State Lands Encroachments Act 1883 were not repealed.

Clause 46 also confers power on the Minister to make regulations prescribing additional provisions of a saving or transitional nature consequent on the enactment of the clause as the Minister may consider necessary or expedient. The regulations may be made only within a 2-year time limit.

EXPENDITURE OF PUBLIC MONEY

This Bill will not involve the Government in any extra financial expenditure.
