EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

This Bill seeks to implement the tax changes relating to the integrated investment allowance announced in the Government’s 2012 Budget Statement, to make certain other amendments to the Economic Expansion Incentives (Relief from Income Tax) Act (Cap. 86) and to make related and consequential amendments to the Income Tax Act (Cap. 134).

Clause 1 relates to the short title and commencement.

Clause 2 amends section 19J(5A) to provide that where the tax relief period of a development and expansion company is extended after the expiry of 20 years of tax relief period, the concessionary rate of tax applicable to the expansion income derived by such company after the 20th year up to the 30th year, and after the 30th year up to the 40th year, of its tax relief period will be increased in the manner specified therein.

Clause 3(a) amends section 19K to insert new subsections (3A) to (3D).

The new section 19K(3A) confers on the Minister the power to extend the tax relief period of a relevant development and expansion company after the expiry of the tax relief period referred to in section 19K(3) for such further period or periods, not exceeding 10 years at any one time, as he may determine.

The new section 19K(3B) states that the total tax relief period of a relevant development and expansion company under section 19K(1), (2) and (3A) must not exceed 40 years.

The new section 19K(3C) states that the Minister may only grant an extension under the new section 19K(3A) during the period between 18th February 2008 and 17th February 2018 (both dates inclusive).

The new section 19K(3D) provides the definition of “relevant development and expansion company” for the purposes of section 19K, viz., a development and expansion company that engages in a qualifying activity and oversees, manages or controls any activity (whether or not a qualifying activity) on a regional or global basis.

Clause 3(b) makes a consequential amendment to section 19K(5) arising from the insertion of the new section 19K(3A).

Clause 3(c) amends section 19K to insert a new subsection (7) to provide that the tax relief period of a development and expansion company which is deemed to be an approved company under section 43ZF of the Income Tax Act (Concessionary rate of tax for shipping-related support services), shall expire on 1st June 2011 and will not be extended. This is because such a company will from that date be given a tax incentive in accordance with section 43ZF.

Clause 4 makes a consequential amendment to section 19KA(1) arising from the insertion of the new section 19K(3A) and (3B).

Clause 5 repeals and re-enacts Part XIID (Integrated Industrial Capital Allowances) due to the withdrawal of this tax incentive scheme. The clause enacts a new Part XIID comprising new sections 97ZA to 97ZJ, to introduce a new tax incentive scheme known as the Integrated Investment Allowance.

The new section 97ZA sets out the definitions of the terms which are used in the new Part XIID.

The new section 97ZB sets out the following in relation to the new tax incentive scheme:

- (a) the eligibility of a company to apply for an integrated investment allowance (IIA), viz., it intends to carry out an overseas manufacturing or specialised engineering or technical services project through another company;
- (b) the considerations which the Minister has to take into account when determining whether to issue an approval letter to qualify a company for an IIA;
- (c) the fixed capital expenditure on equipment for the project for which an IIA will be given;
- (d) the total amount of IIA to be given to a qualifying company;
- (e) the information which an approval letter must contain;
- (f) the maximum period from a day specified as the company's "investment day" during which fixed capital expenditure incurred for each qualifying equipment may be given the IIA;
- (g) the finality of any decision of the Minister to specify any particular equipment as qualifying equipment;
- (h) the power of the Minister to amend the investment day of a company upon an application by the company; and
- (i) the period during which the Minister may grant approval to a company for an IIA.

The new section 97ZC describes the manner in which an IIA may be granted.

The new section 97ZC(1) states that an IIA will be given to a company for the fixed capital expenditure which it incurred on any qualifying equipment for an approved project within the qualifying period for that equipment.

The new section 97ZC(2) sets out the circumstances under which an IIA may be given.

The new section 97ZC(3) provides that an IIA will not normally be given to a company for any year of assessment for which the company derives certain income from the approved project.

The new section 97ZC(4) confers on the Minister a power to allow an IIA to be given to a company for a year of assessment notwithstanding that the company derives any income specified in the new section 97ZC(3) from the project.

The new section 97ZD provides the circumstances under which an IIA given to a company is credited to a normal IIA account or a concessionary IIA account.

The new section 97ZE provides the manner in which an IIA credited to a normal IIA account or concessionary IIA account may be used to exempt from tax a company's net chargeable normal income or net chargeable concessionary income (as defined in the new section 97ZA) for any year of assessment.

The new section 97ZF provides for the manner in which an IIA is to be given to a company and used for exempting its income from tax where —

- (a) the company derives normal income or both normal income and concessionary income from an approved project before a date (referred to in the section as the relevant date) in the basis period for a year of assessment (referred to in the section as the transitional year);
- (b) in the case where the company derives both normal income and concessionary income from the approved project before the relevant date, the Minister, or such person as he may appoint, has directed for any IIA given in respect of the approved project to be credited wholly to the normal IIA account; and
- (c) the company derives concessionary income from the approved project for the rest of the basis period for the transitional year beginning with the relevant date.

The new section 97ZG provides for the manner in which an IIA is to be given to a company and used for exempting its income from tax where —

- (a) the company derives concessionary income or both normal income and concessionary income from an approved project before a date (referred to in the section as the relevant date) in the basis period for a year of assessment (referred to in the section as the transitional year);

- (b) in the case where the company derives both normal income and concessionary income from an approved project before the relevant date, the Minister, or such person as he may appoint, has directed for any IIA given in respect of the approved project to be credited wholly to the concessionary IIA account; and
- (c) the company derives normal income from the approved project for the rest of the basis period for the transitional year beginning with the relevant date.

The new section 97ZH prohibits a company which is granted an IIA for any qualifying equipment, from selling, leasing out (except to the project company) or otherwise disposing of the qualifying equipment within the qualifying period of the equipment and within 2 years after the end of such qualifying period, except with the written approval of the Minister. Where a company does not comply with this prohibition, the Comptroller of Income Tax (the Comptroller) will recover from the company the IIA granted to the company in respect of the qualifying equipment, unless the Minister waives, wholly or partly, such recovery.

The new section 97ZI provides that where it appears to the Comptroller that any income of a company exempted from tax under the new section 97ZE, 97ZF or 97ZG ought not to have been so exempted by reason of a revocation under section 99 of the approval letter issued under the new section 97ZB to the company, the Comptroller may make an assessment or additional assessment upon the company to recover such tax as may have been exempted under the new Part XIID.

The new section 97ZJ provides for the application of Parts XVII and XVIII of the Income Tax Act (relating to assessments, objections and appeals) to any assessment or additional assessment given under the new section 97ZI.

Clause 6 makes consequential amendments to section 104 arising from the repeal of Part XIIE.

Clause 7 makes related and consequential amendments to various provisions in the Income Tax Act arising from the repeal and re-enactment of Part XIID of the Economic Expansion Incentives (Relief from Income Tax) Act.
